STUDENTS’ ATTENDANCE

Loyola College strives to impart quality education to form men and women for others. Students’ attendance for the classes is one of the essential requirements of all academic programmes conducted by the college. When students attend classes regularly they will have many opportunities to interact with teachers and other students, so they can exchange and share their ideas and knowledge with other people together. This will help students gain and expand their knowledge. And it is also a good way for students to practice their responsibilities and discipline in their study as well as in their work. Hence, in accordance with the ethos of Loyola College, every student of PULC twinning programme should have 80% attendance compulsorily every semester, failing which they will not be permitted to appear for the semester examinations. In case of any unavoidable circumstances for genuine reasons, students are advised to apply for leave through a leave form available in the office. Your absence from the class without prior permission will not be tolerated and considered for lack of attendance.
